Hundreds Search for Mrs. Eliot Schaffner, Missing Since Tuesday

LATE BULLETIN

A blue shoe found late yesterday by officers Charles Guth and Earl Wermuth on the beach north of Carmel Point was identified by Marion Boke Todd and by Bert and Cleo Dorsey, servants of Mrs. Schaffner as belonging to the missing woman. This was accepted as proof that her body was to be found in the bay. Search of the waters beating the rocky point was conducted with the aid of powerful searchlights of the Carmel fire truck, but was abandoned till morning. Dr. E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley criminologist, was called into the case by Joseph H. Schaffner who was expected today.

GREATEST manhunt in Carmel's history resulted this week from the disappearance early Tuesday morning of Eliot Boke Schaffner, member of an old and prominent family residing here for many years. She was occupying the Hardy house at Thirteenth and Casanova.

Under leadership of Sheriffs Carl H. Abbott of Monterey county and A. T. Dresser of Santa Cruz, Chief of Police Gus Englund, and a civilian corps organized under Charles Van Riper, hills, valley, beach and residential area were combed in an effort to locate the missing woman or her body.

Yesterday 300 soldiers from the Presidio at Monterey joined the search. The troops, under command of Major J. O. Daly of the Seventy-sixth field artillery, spread out in details and scoured the entire district.

While the theory advanced by the police that Mrs. Schaffner had drowned herself in Carmel bay was strengthened by the fact that two Doberman Pintchers, highly trained police dogs, followed what was believed to be the woman's trail to the water's edge. close friends persisted in the hope that Mrs. Schaffner had voluntarily sought seclusion for a few days. Her family, represented here by her mother, Mrs. George H. Boke, and her sister, Marion Boke Todd, who made a hurried trip from San Francisco to assist with the search, are holding to the hope that she may have wandered off in a fit of amnesia.

Talked With Nurse

Last person to talk with Mrs. Schaffner was her nurse, who had been in attendance since her return from a hospital where she had been resting while watching at the bedside of her two-year-old daughter, Eliot, who had been ill of influenza. Worried over her daughter, and apparently brooding over some matter which she had not disclosed to her family, her health had been critical for some time.

Mrs. Schaffner apparently left the house fully clad, as a fur coat, dress and shoes were missing from her wardrobe. Behind her she left money, jewelry, cigarets, and a ticket to Chicago, which she had purchased

MANY VOTERS LOSE BALLOT ON CITY HALL

MANY citizens of Carmel will be unable to cast their ballots for or against the city hall bonds to be voted on at a special election here in January, according to C. F. Joy, Monterey county clerk. This is set forth in a letter written to The Carmel Pine Cone by the county official. His letter follows:

"I note in your valuable paper that the city council of Carmel-by-the-Sea has called a municipal bond election for January.

"In order to avoid misunderstanding among the electors in your city concerning the present status of registration for that election, I judge it might be advisable to give some publicity to the following statement.

"I am now engaged in the cancellation of the registrations of those electors in the county who failed to vote at both the August primary and November general elections this year. Notification of such cancellation will be mailed to such electors about January 1, 1935, and registration affidavits will be furnished to the registration deputies so that such of these electors who desire to re-register may do so.

"The point that I wish to bring to attention is this. Those electors whose registrations have been cancelled in accordance with the requirements of the law as above stated will not be entitled to vote at the election on January 7, 1935; and as the law requires that registration close 40 days before any election there will not be an opportunity for them to re-register prior to January 7, 1935, the day of election.

"The registration in the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea for the general election in November was 1451. Of this number 312 have been cancelled for failure to vote. This leaves a registration of 1139 for the municipal bond election in January.

ANTHONY BRAZIL OPERATED UPON FOR APPENDICITIS

Anthony Brazil, Monterey county district attorney-elect, underwent an operation for appendicitis Tuesday at Peninsula Community Hospital. Dr. Edwin F. Kehr and Dr. Paul Hunter are in attendance, and report that the patient is doing nicely.

FIRE QUICKLY PUT OUT

Fire thought due to a defective chimney endangered the home of Capt. and Mrs. De Witt Blamer, on San Antonio street, Monday evening, but was quickly extinguished by the local department following telephone alarm.

Election on City Hall Proposal Postponed

POSTPONEMENT of the city hall bond election to an indefinite date resulted from the Wednesday evening session of the village council. First reading of the ordinance calling for the election was declared void when it was pointed out by City Clerk Saidee Van Brower that there were certain minor errors in the ordinance, notably in the manner in which precincts were consolidated. In the absence of City Attorney Argyll Campbell, further action on the ordinance was postponed until this evening when the city attorney will meet with the council. It was also pointed out by the city clerk that insufficien time had been allowed for publication of the ordinance. Councilman John Catlin emphasized that in order to have federal assistance in the project there must be no suspicion of the slightest irregularity about the eleciton or the technicalities preceding it.

An Apology

After disposing of the election question, numerous minor matters were considered by the body. A letter was read from Frederick Burt, apologizing for the Christmas "wish" he had expressed to Winsor Josselyn for publication last week in a Pine Cone Christmas feature, for a "new city council" for Christmas. Mr. Burt hastened to say that he felt this an "ill-considered wisecrack" when he saw it in cold print. The council voted to accept Mr. Burt's apology, Councilman Rowntree demurring, as he said he heartily agreed with the Christmas wish.

A communication was read from Allen Griffin, publisher of the Monterey Herald, asking for permission to distribute hand-bills in Carmel. Councilman Rowntree remarked that this matter had been fought out so many times that he felt it was not worth discussing again. Councilman Burge opposed the idea on the grounds that there was already enough litter to clean up from the streets. Councilman Catlin declared

Dirigible Macon Thrills Carmelites With Visit Locally

For several days this week Carmel residents were thrilled by the sight of the dirigible Macon, which visited Monterey and circled along the coast line of Carmel and Point Lobos taking on and launching the airplanes which it carries.

The flight of the Macon here was in connection with maneuvers commemorating the first of the Wright brothers flights in the dunes of the Carolinas and was observed nation-wide.

ARGYLL CAMPBELL NOT GAME BOARD CANDIDATE

Denying that he was a candidate for appointment to the State Fish and Game Commission, Attorney Argyll Campbell stated that he favored either S. F. B. Morse or Houghton Roberts for the place should a vacancy be created with the rumored resignation of J. Dale Gentry.

Campbell complimented Gentry's work on the commission, but felt that if he were to be replaced it should be by someone from the Monterey peninsula familiar with industrial conditions here.

CARMEL HAS 5.53 INCHES OF RAINFALL FOR SEASON

Vigorous rainfall last Thursday and Friday and an .06 inch drizzle Sunday brought total precipitation for the storm to 2.03, according to readings at the Carnegie Coastal Laboratory here. Since July, Carmel has been blessed with 5.53 inches of rain.

HURT IN COLLISION

Head-on collision of cars recently on the Mal Paso bridge sent Fred Woo, of Salinas, to the hospital and gave superficial cuts to the driver of the other car, both being cared for at the Peninsula Community hospital.

Carmel Dressed In Holiday Garb To Receive Santa

Carmel blossomed out this week in her festive holiday garb. The two municipal trees are lighted nightly; one, at the bottom of the hill just as you come over the hill to the village, is all in green lights and the one at the corner of Ocean and Dolores has varigated lights. Both have new silver stars on the topmost tips. Small evergreens line the business streets, occupying the sidewalk holes used for flags on patriotic holidays.

The library has a lighted tree and pretty wreaths. Christmas displays are in the merchants' windows, and many householders are stringing colored lights on their outdoor Christmas trees. With the full moon to give the last effective touch, the village, particularly at night, has a gala appearance.

New York Publisher Dies Visiting Daughter

Death came to one Carmel home a few days ago when John Howard Morehouse passed away at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Belo, with whom he and Mrs. Morehouse had been staying since they came here from Chicago three months ago.

Mr. Morehouse was for many years prominent in the publishing business in New York. He died of a heart attack and funeral services were held at Community church last Saturday with the Rev. Melvin C. Dorsett officiating. The funeral was held in the Paul mortuary and burial followed in Monterey cemetery.

Mr. Morehouse was born in Toledo, Ohio, 64 years ago. He had been associated with the MacMillan Publishing Company of New York and the W. S. Saunders Publishing Company of Philadelphia.

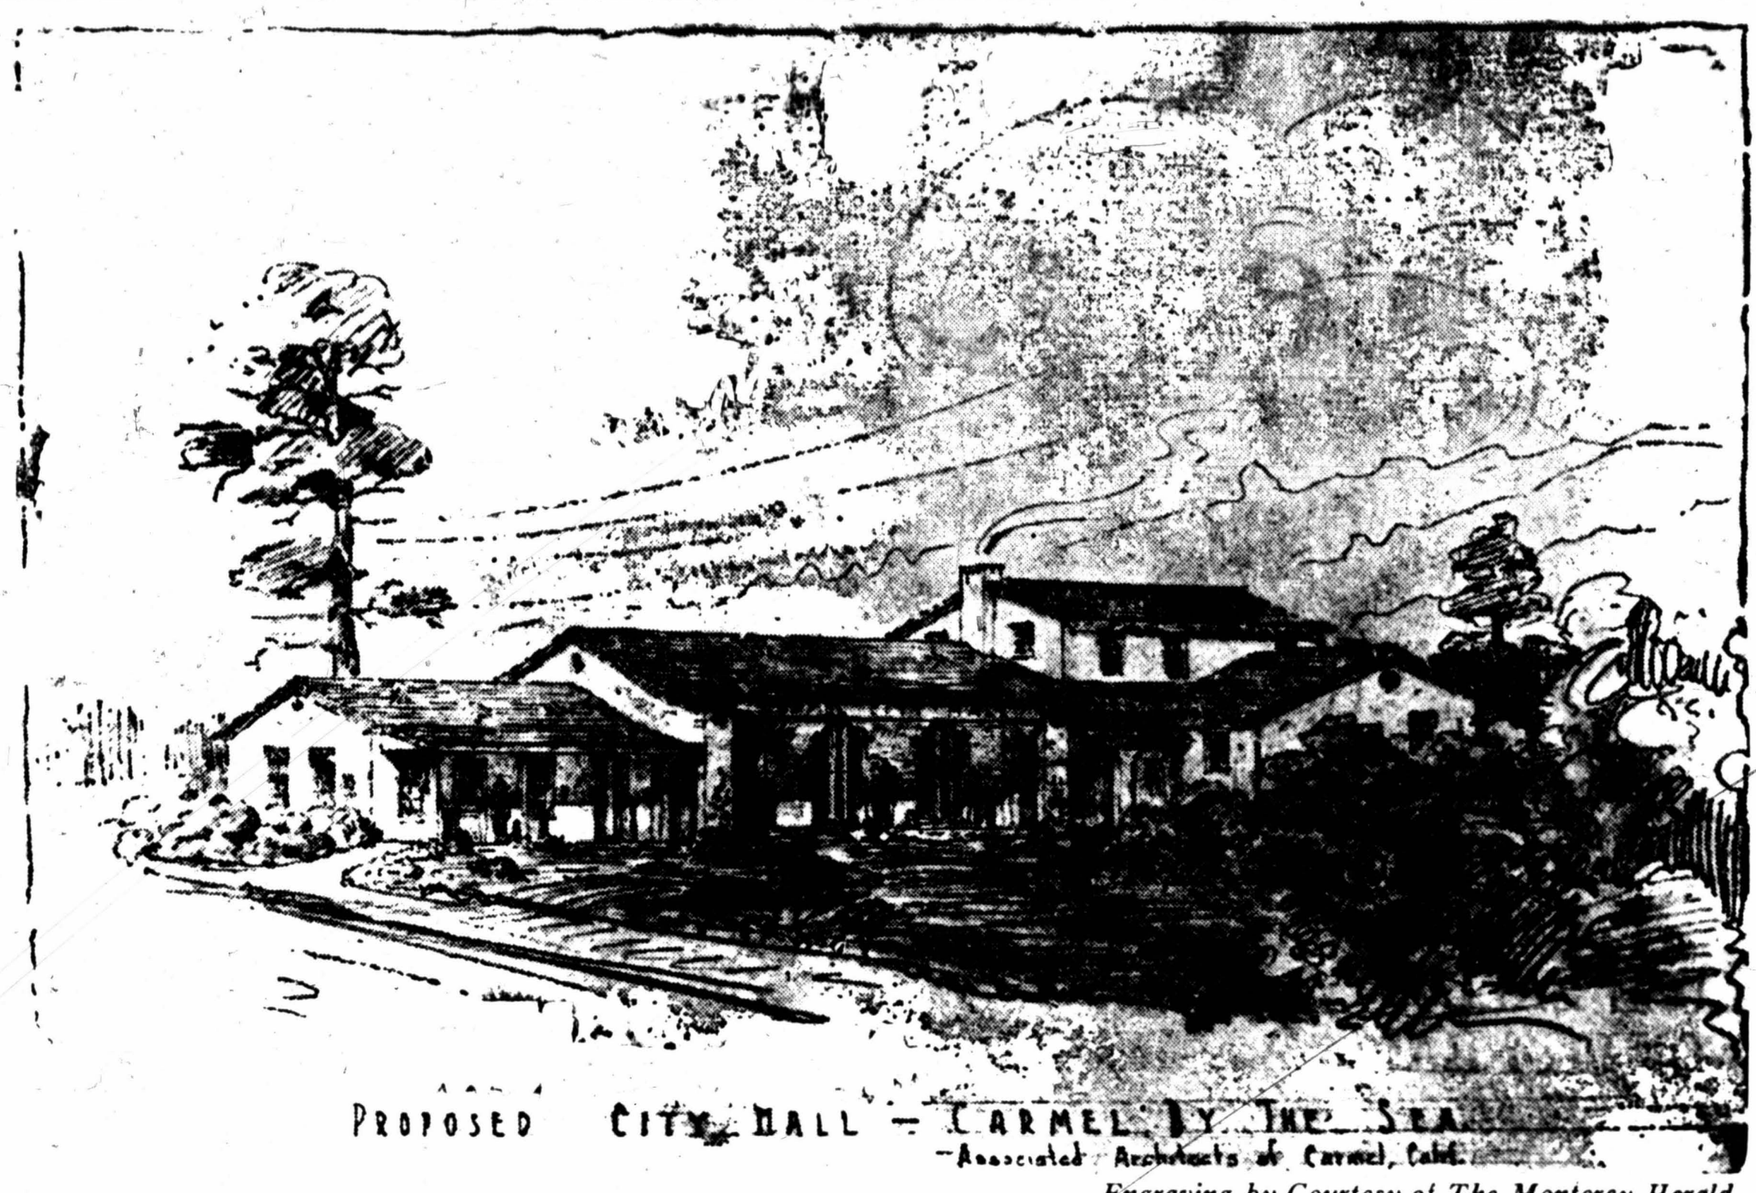

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Minnie R. Morehouse; four children, Mrs. Louisa J. Belo, of Carmel; Miss Alice R. Morehouse of Chicago; Howard R. Morehouse of Bear Lake, Mich.; and James W. Morehouse of Chicago.

Might Test Out London Law Here

London's recently enacted law prohibiting the use of motor vehicle horns between 11:30 p. m. and 7:30 a. m. does not necessitate a trip to the English metropolis to study its effects, according to the Public Safety Department of the National Automobile Club.

The Carmel motorist can find out just what the Londoner is up against by deciding not to use his horn during these hours? If he discovers himself driving more slowly than usual—feeling rather bereft without a warning device—he will be doing just what those who made the London law hoped.

that in his opinion the hand-bill ordinance interferes with the liberty of the press, but later moved that Mr. Griffin be informed that to give him the necessary permission it would be necessary to repeal the hand-bill ordinance and that the council was in no mood to do this. Ross C. Miller, editor of The Pine Cone, rose to remark during the discussion that while The Pine Cone was taking no stand in defense of the ordinance for business reasons, he as a citizen would object to the distribution of handbills as a public nuisance, and pointed out the weekly littering of post office floor and wastebaskets by advertising matter of the dodger type.

Street Obstructions

Informal discussion of street obstructions and civic responsibility therefor was launched when Councilman Burge brought up the matter of a driveway that has been so installed as to divert storm waters across neighboring property. He was advised to "use diplomacy" in persuading the builder of the driveway to reconstruct it so that it would not constitute a nuisance. Mr. Burge also mentioned the matter of certain walls that abut on city property, which would have to be torn out "if we ever put in sidewalks." Councilman Norton, who showed an inclination to play with dynamite, as his confreres mentioned several times, also said that the "grand canyon" on Mission between Third and Fourth, former gravel pit, should be fenced before someone fell in it, and added that he "didn't think anyone would object to this." Echoes of a thousand former battles in the council chambers answered, "Oh wouldn't they, though?"

The council took formal cognizance of the disappearance of Mrs. Eliot Boke Schaffner when it was announced by Mayor Thoburn that soldiers from Monterey Presidio would undertake a thorough search of the south end of the village Thursday. Council members recommended that unoccupied houses, in particular, be carefully examined.

Valuable Library In Private Sale

Open letter of Stephen A. Reynolds, "S. A. R," to his Carmel friends, to Washington anent delay in passing on his HOLC loan, brought action to the extent of a wire from the Palo Alto Mutual Building and Loan company, deferring for 30 days sale of his home. In the meantime, many friends have rallied to his side, and will be present at a sale Saturday afternoon from 2 o'clock to 5, at which 700 volumes of books, accumulation of 20 years, and comprising one of Carmel's most complete and varied libraries, will be offered. The collection was examined Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Karl Rendtorff, Mrs. Dora H. Comstock and Miss Hortense Bery, on behalf of Carmel library, and they pronounced it a masterly selection of the world's best literature. A few volumes were purchased for the library.

S. F. B. Morse, Allen Griffin, Col. Roland Morgan, Col. Ralph Parker, Walter Teaby, Sheldon L. Gilmer and James Thoburn are among prominent people of the peninsula who are interested in the event, and will attend the Saturday sale. A few choice household effects will also be offered. The Reynolds' residence is on Santa Fe, between First and Second, and may be identified by two large century plants.

Mr. Reynolds, after settling his troubled affairs locally, expects to go east for medical attention to his eyes. Failing sight has made impossible pursuing his career as writer.

AGED CHINESE, HOLDUP VICTIM, MAY RECOVER

M. W. Hong, aged Chinese beaten brutally in a hold-up at his New Monterey store Tuesday, is reported to be holding his own at Peninsula Community Hospital where he is undergoing treatment. The 73-year-old Oriental sustained a fractured skull, but has showed remarkable recuperative powers, according to hospital attendants. Police are seeking two bandits, reported to be Filipinos, whom they believe perpetrated the hold-up.

Regarding Carmel as a second home and owning property here, Dr. and Mrs. Fred Curtis of San Jose are in the village for two weeks' vacation.

Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Winslow for dinner and bridge at Del Monte Lodge were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Delafield Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. Byington Ford and Dr. and Mrs. Paul Hunter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Parker of Highlands Inn were in San Francisco this week.

City Hall Conscious?

Then Study These Points

By PERRY NEWBERRY

ACCORDING to a majority of the present City Council, a lack of education upon the part of the residents of Carmel is responsible for the several decisions in the past adverse to the building of a city hall. Now Carmel's people are to be educated, presumably by these councilmen. Before you start to school, take a look at the faculty.

Here is Mayor James H. Thoburn. Mr. Thoburn is a good business man, and has lived several years in Carmel, where he has engaged in the real estate business. Here is Robert E. Norton, another real estate man, and Joseph A. Burge, nurseryman. Here is John C. Catlin, iron worker and attorney. Bernard Rowntree, the fifth member of the council, will not try to educate Carmel's people to love of a new City Hall, for he is opposed to one.

The Curriculum

These councilmen who will stress a program of education are all good and loyal citizens, but are they qualified to teach the electorate of Carmel what it should have, or should do? Are real estate men to dictate the future of this village? Is a practical viewpoint the ambition of our people? Are we to give over the town to the materialists, and allow them to educate us to liking the idea of a City Hall?

Then what is the curriculum? You are going to be taught that the present quarters of the city are unhealthy, cramped and a fire-trap. You are going to learn that rent-paying is bad business, and that all the city gets for its rent money is a pile of receipts. You will be told that there will never again come an opportunity to get such advantageous terms for a city hall's financing. You will be shown figures that will almost convince you that this financing will require no increase of the taxes. And, finally, you will be urged to think of the needy unemployed, who will be lifted into affluence through this projected construction.

Check the Facts

As you listen to these arguments, these lessons of instruction, give them careful thought; go over the figures, lead-pencil in hand; check on the facts presented, one by one. Like that of the fire-trap, for instance. Is it any more of a fire-trap than your own store, or house? How many of you are housed in fireproof buildings? And another stairway, or fire escape could be easily and cheaply installed, and undoubtedly would be, by the owners of the building, with any guarantee for an extension of lease.

Also, there are unoccupied offices in the building which allow expansion for the city's needs without much additional expense, if any.

The argmuent of lack of filing facilities for the city's important records has a similar lack of conviction, for either of the banks could furnish safety and convenience at small expense.

Mathematically, your instructors are far too optimistic in their figuring. When they tell you how valueless are rent receipts, ask them what they get in return for interest payments? What do they receive for insurance premiums, for repair bills and upkeep? Nothing but receipted bills. And how do these carrying charges compare?

Costs Compared

Suppose we take a five-year period, comparing costs of a lease of the present city hall and engine house with the carrying costs of a new city hall. We pay rentals now of $75 per month for the city departments, and $40 per month for fire department; a total for five years of $6900. Janitor service adds $1410; heat, light and water adds $900; there is no cost for repairs or for fire insurance, both of which charges are up to the owner. The total cost for a five years lease is $9210.

For the city-owned city hall, interest charges for the first five years would be $5800; janitor service, $5000; heat, light and water, $2000; fire insurance $1200; a total for the five years of $14,000. This does not allow for any cost of repairs, and does not include the $5000 to be paid on the principal sum, the bond redemption fund. The total payments necessary to be made for a new city hall in its first five years, are $19,000 as against $9200 to be paid for a leased city hall. And these figures are very conservative. It is probable that the new city hall, instead of doubling the costs, will triple them.

How will these additional costs to the taxpayers be met? Your instructors in their educational campaign will tell you that the sand-dunes bond issue, which terminates January, 1937, will take care of it without extra taxes. Will it? Use your head and your lead-pencil a minute.

Taxes Will Increase

The first year of the city hall bond issue requires payment of $1240 interest and $1000 principal; next year's sand dune bond payment requires $120 interest and $1000 principal. How could it be stretched to cover, even if it were available for city hall payments? But it isn't available. It has to be paid; and in January 1937, another $1000 sand dune bond, with $60 interest must be paid. During 1935 and 1936, how will the council raise its city hall requirements of approximately $4000 per year?

There is only one way, and that is by increased taxation. Whether it is done by increasing the levy, or by raising the city's assessed valuation, the result is the same. There must be a great increase of tax income to pay the way of a city hall. Your taxable properties will have to bear the burden.

There is one other argument in the educational curriculum: construction of a city hall would give work to our unemployed. Now check that one carefully. How would the council guarantee the work to Carmel's unemployed? P. W. A. wants men at work, but not particularly Carmel men. The law will not permit any positive clause in the contract that obligates the employment of local men. Verbal promises made by contractors, as we know, are apt to crumble in the stress of building.

Day Labor Expensive

You will probably be told that the city can reject all bids, and proceed under day labor, hiring local men throughout. Unfortunately for this plan, the bondholders wouldn't like it, or allow it. Experience has taught them that it is a costly way to build, and too often the money is exhausted before the structure is complete, with the sad necessity of another bond issue, or a jump in taxes. It is a fair statement that there is no practical method of guaranteeing employment of local men, nor will local men be used if they interfere in any way with profit-making by the contractor.

It seems impossible that the people of Carmel would allow Devendorf Plaza, the little gem-like park in the center of town, to be used as a building site for a city hall, but that is the suggestion of the council in this bond issue. The western end of that block would be covered by the building.

What educational propaganda will be used to make you like this cannot be forecast.

after a sudden decision to spend Christmas with her husband, Joseph H. Schaffner, member of the firm of Hart, Schaffner & Marx.

Plane Forced Down

Mr. Schaffner, who was called from Chicago to New York several weeks ago for a business conference, left immediately for Carmel when notified Tuesday by the local relatives of his wife's disappearance. His arrival was delayed until Thursday when the plane in which he was traveling was forced down by bad weather in the middle west, and he proceeded by train. His instructions by wire were to spare no expense nor publicity in the search.

Mrs. Emma Otey, residing at Tenth and San Carlos, informed the police, after learning that Mrs. Schaffner was missing that about 6:30 Tuesday morning she saw a woman, evidently weak and weary, walking east on Tenth street past her house. At that hour it was too dark for her to distinguish features, or even the type of coat worn by the pedestrian. This clue, and that supplied by the Dobermanns brought from Berkeley by C. A. Roy and T. S. Orms in pointing a trail to Carmel Bay, were the most tangible offered.

New Terraplane Car's Electric Hand Thrills

To ride in the new Teraplane motor cars for 1935 is to realize in fact what has been the hope of automobile owners for years. Here is combined the perfection of quality, with the utmost ease of control.

Perhaps the most thrilling feature of the new cars in the "electric hand" which looks exactly like a miniature gear shift lever adjoining the steering wheel. It is in fact, a miniature gear shift lever but it accomplishes much more than the mere freeing the floor space of gear shift levers. One can shift from one gear to another at any time and at any speed without crash of gears, and without any perceptible effort. For example, if driving in high gear behind another car, and you anticipate wishing the quick acceleration on second gear for passing, you press the electric hand into second and continue driving in high. At the right moment, a split second's release of the throttle completes the shift, and you whizz by in second gear. This is called "pre-selection" and has been a sought-for ideal in motor car construction for many years, according to William Stahl, dealer for the new cars.

The cars are now on display at the Stahl Motor Company of Monterey, and Mr. Stahl invites everyone to ride in the new machines. "A call will bring a demonstrator to your door," he says.

"Springtime for Henry" to Open at Playhouse Next Thursday Night

"SPRINGTIME FOR HENRY," sophisticated farce, slightly naughty, ultra-modern and very funny, is the holiday offering of the Community Players, to be produced next Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at the Playhouse. Whitmore Waldegrave is directing the cast of four, and has designed an appropriate modernistic set for the piece.

This is the story of Henry Dewlip who inherits an automobile plant and a watch from his father, and does not believe in tinkering with either one. He also takes care that his business shall not interfere with his play-boy existence. A side-complication is that he and the wife of his best friend, Johnny Jelliwell, entertain a sentimental attachment and would like to run away together, but Johnny refuses to take them seriously.

Henry's sole attention to business is the hiring of secretaries, who last about three weeks. Until Miss Smith appears, with a resolution to reform the play-boy, which she accomplishes in the intermission between the first and second acts.

The second act discloses a new Henry, with Julia spurned and miffed about it, and her husband upset because he probably will not get that carburetor contract he wanted. But Henry discovers that Miss Smith has a son and had had a husband, until she shot him. He believes she has been sailing under false colors. and his disillusionment tenses the action of the play, though all in a light vein.

Third act finds Henry nursing a persecution complex and a cold, and Johnny Jelliwell nobly willing to solve the problem by marrying Miss Smith and turning Julia over to Henry. Solution of these complications to the satisfaction of all brings the comedy to an urbane conclusion.

The cast, consisting of Charlotte Lawrence, Digby Smith, Mrs. Jose Perez-Brown and Reginald Foster are handling the sparkling material of the play most competently, and promise to give a stimulating performance. "Props" for the show are unusually numerous and peculiar, according to Director Waldegrave, ranging from a black cat to a roulette wheel.

New Fiction Arrives At Carmel Library

During December, 13 new volumes of fiction have been received at Carmel library, and 19 volumes of non-fiction. Among titles of partcular interest in the former are Rolland's "A World in Birth," final volume of his monumental, "The Soul Enchanted"; Stuart Edward White's "Folded Hills," sequel to "The Long Rifle," and "Ranchero.' Hugh Walpole has edited a treasury of fiction which he calls "Famous Stories of Five Centuries.'

In non-fiction, Beals has done for Peru in his new "Fire on the Andes" what he did for Mexico in an earlier volume. Buchan's "Oliver Cromwell," Harry Emerson Fosdick's "Secret of Victorious Living," Gibbs' "European Journey", Jeans "Through Time and Space," Landau's "All's Fair," account of British service behind the German lines, Beverly Nichols, "A Village in a Valley," Swinnerton's "Georgian Scene" are among the interesting non-fiction titles. Edna St. Vincent Millay's latest output, "Wine from these Grapes" is among the new volumes, as is Nan MacIntosh Hairs' volume, "Purple Vintage."

SINGING WILL FEATURE COMMUNITY CHURCH SERVICE

Special feature of the Sunday Christmas service of Community church will be singing of an octette consisting of Gertrude Bardarson, Betty Hyde, Ethel Irvine, Frances Schrieman, Andrew Sessink, Dr. R. M. Hollingsworth, Dr. Lawrence M. Knox and Miles Bain, who will give "And the Glory of the Lord," from Handel's "Messiah." Solos and duet numbers will also be given by various of the singers. All music will be accompanied by Ruth Sessink. Music and poetry will make up the service under the direction of Rev. Melvin C. Dorsett.

Saturday afternoon at the church children of the Sunday school will have their party, for which they are making the arrangements under direction of Mrs. D. E. Nixon.

Property Prices Advancing

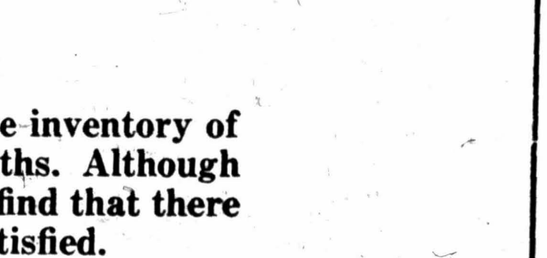

Because of the happier outlook for 1935 land prices, some bargains have already been withdrawn from the market.

Make a selection in a home-site now. Consider one of these; a lot with charming oak trees, former price $1250, now $850; three corner lots in Carmel woods, estate sale, $600; a beach lot, normal price $5000, now $2750, but goes to $3000 on January 1st; a delightful little home, frame, large piece of land, Ocean view, original cost about $15,000, now $8750. Community Christmas for Children Sunday Afternoon

CARMEL'S community Christmas, for the children, will be held Sunday afternoon; close enough to the great day for the festive spirit to be in the air, yet far enough in advance not to conflict with Christmas Eve, which sponsors feel many people would rather enjoy quietly at home. A committee of which James Regan is general chairman, and on which the Woman's club, P.-T. A., American Legion, Boy Scouts, churches and Sunset school are represented have planned the affair, which promises to be the most picturesque and significant of Carmel's annual observances of Noel.

The children will gather at the Manzanita-Legion club house on Dolores at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Carrying lighted Chinese lanterns, they will file down Dolores to Ocean and up Ocean to the lighted tree at the corner of Junipero, singing an old carol, "March of the Kings."

Assembled around the tree, they will sing "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "Silent Night," and "Oh Come All Ye Faithful," with the assistance of the adults present. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Andrew Sessink on a parlour organ which Miss Margaret White is loaning for the occasion.

The quartet of Community church, including Ethel Irvine, Gertrude Bardarson, Andrew Sessink and Dr. Lawrence Knox, will sing "Oh Holy Night," by Adams, and Bach's "Break Forth, Oh Beauteous Morn."

Then, best part of all, comes the visit of Santa Claus. The jolly saint is arriving in highly modern style this year. He will come down the hill from the general direction of Monterey riding on the hood of a festively decorated car, blanketed with snow and gay with streamers and lights. Over his shoulder will be a big bag, filled with little bags of candy which will be distributed to the children, who will exchange their lanterns for the candy.

While it is specifically for the children that the party is planned, it is hoped that a great many grown people will be present, too, to show that this is a real community affair in which everyone is interested.

Electrical Goods to Attract Yule Buyers

Featuring new and original Christmas displays this year, Rudolph's Furniture store of New Monterey is showing the Apex line of electrical utilities which include the new model washers, ironers, electric refrigerators, and vacuum cleaners. A very special feature is a large model electric sweeper which is being offered together with a handy unit cleaner, both for the regular price of the large sweeper alone.

All Apex electrical appliances, according to Ray Rudolph, are advanced in design and modestly priced.

Other special Christmas displays include new and novel chairs for children, as well as complete displays of household furniture of varied types and deisgns suited to every conceivable type of home and taste.

LOANS TO VETERANS

Any of the Associated Architects of Monterey county will be able to give information anent the operation of loans to veterans under the terms of the bond issue act passed at the last general election, according to word received here. Monterey Peninsula members of the association are Guy Koepp, C. J. Ryland, W. O. Raiguel, C. C. Green and Milton Latham.

Community Hospital Has Christmas Tree

Due to the efforts of Mrs. Bert Hyde and the generosity of Carmel business houses, Peninsula Community Hospital is in gala dress befitting the season. Mrs. Hyde told some of the merchants that as a community enterprise, it would be a nice thought for the village to send some decorations up to the hospital. Results were that E. H. Ewig and Staniford's Drug store each donated a large tree, and Carl Rohr and Conrad Imelman and Mr. Hyde volunteered to provide the lights. Peter Burke and "Pop" Curtis provided decorations and candy canes.

One tree graces the spacious lobby, and the other is set in the patio at the hospital, where it makes a beacon widely visible from highway, valley and village.

HIS MUSIC HONORED

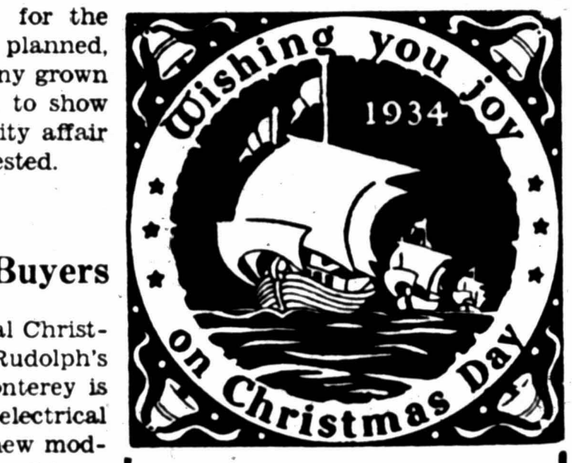

Eugene Goossens, the composer and operatic conductor, who is now in Paris, has been made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor for services in connection with French music.

Christmas Holidays Bring Musicians Home

Interested auditors at Sunday evening's rehearsal of the Monterey Peninsula Community Orchestra were several former members, who hope to be able to join the players when they give their first concert of the year, probably in January. All are away at school, but returned to the village this week for Christmas holidays. Grace Knowles, who plays first violin, is a freshman at San Jose State Teachers College. Henry Dickinson, now teaching in the Peninsula School of Creative Education, at Menlo Park, plays the flute. Billy Dickinson, cellist, is a student at University of California. Paul Taylor is home from College of the Pacific at Stockton. His instrument is the trumpet.

Books, Old and New

By THELMA B. MILLER

PERHAPS the lion-hunters thought Frieda Lawrence was only the appendage to a great man. But she has shown them that this business of writing books is no great thing after all—she has written one herself! Taking it in her stride, as she has taken so many great experiences. She is not a writer, probably has no aspirations to be one; but in her matter-of-fact way she has mastered a technique many writers strive for vainly—the trick of making few words say much.

Trying to interpret Lawrence other writers have made him an impenetrable riddle or a lay-figure for their own ideas. In "Not I, But the Wind," Frieda Lawrence has given Lawrence to the world; delicately, kindly. At the hands of his wife, as in his books, Lawrence emerges in simple greatness.

Reciprocal Relationship

"Can I hear the real song of our life, the motifs gay, bold, sad, terrible?" she asks. "Do I understand anything at all or am I only recording unliving, dull facts?" Rather naively she wonders if others can "learn" from their life . . . "take from it the good and avoid the mistakes." Because each life is a new adventure, bringing its own pattern of mistakes and lessons—an unknown land without chart or compass, this is unlikely. But the world will inevitably be interested in that "long fight for Lawrence and me to get at some truth between us; it was a hard life with him, but a wonderful one. Stark and bare, without trimmings or frills. But a few realities remained; a lasting truth triumphed."

Frieda made Lawrence sure of himself—whole; he brought out the genius he recognized in her for living. There was a deep reciprocity; "If I supported him with all my might, the wings of his sure spirit made a shelter for me always."

Letters Included

Along with the skeletal narrative of their life together are included many letters written by Lawrence to Frieda's mother and sisters. Between Lawrence, a comparatively young man, and his mother-in-law, in her seventies, existed a close relationship—with her he had no defenses. Yet ever with her he was best at a distance. In his last days when they came together after long separation inharmony developed. Perhaps each dreaded in the other the presence of death which was to take both so soon.

That was no easy life, nurturing genius! In Frieda, Lawrence sought a mother as much as a wife. At the same time he had an essential dread of women, of the female principle; a half-mystical rejection such as primitive man felt. Yet into this man's complicated psychology Frieda fitted like the key-stone of the edifice.

Pity Not Needed

Such was his need of her, so complete their relationship she could afford to accept casually Lawrence's feminine hangers-on. If pity and indignation for Frieda were aroused in "Lorenzo in Taos" and "Brett and Lawrence" they are now seen to have been wasted—at least, the pity. The indignation Frieda herself felt at times, but even that was superficial. If Lawrence hurt her, if he was unreasonable and sometimes cruel, he always returned to her and showed his need for her. And he told her "It's your business to see that other women don't come too close to me."

The essence of Lawrence was his capacity "to be simply grateful for life itself." Always so frail and near death he appreciated religiously every good moment. He worked with his hands for recreation, and the work had a point, it was not just play-acting. It brought comfort to them materially as well as providing a routine which kept his restless, questing spirit at home on earth. By background Frieda was the more sophisticated of the two, but she followed him wholly in his grateful acceptance of simple pleasures.

How much of Lawrence's work is Lawrence, and how much Frieda, who can say? Not in the sense of "collaboration," but as the vitalizing union of male and female principle is required for all creation. Without this valkeyrie of a woman to sustain him, Lawrence might have gone down in the bitterness of defeat, or have fallen an earlier prey to the illness that dogged all his days.

Siamese Cats More Like Dogs, Declare Owners of Prize Felines

HOW do Siamese cats differ from other cats? Answer to this question is found in a visit to Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Hammond's flock of Siamese cats at their dog and cat hospital on the Watsonville road not far from Del Monte. Pioneers in this comparatively new fancy, they say that the formerly rarely rare and sacred Oriental felines are "more like a dog" that once having them, other cats do not satisfy.

Their "prize" pet is Del Monte Siam, who has taken many show awards and was said by one judge to be the most perfect specimen on on the Pacific Coast. He is a friendly brute, greeting visitors with the squawk which is the way the Siamese cat mews, and following this with gutteral purrs and fawning affection. The kittens are chummy too; reaching experimental paws through the wire netting to pat the visitor's hand, and showing every wililngness to "make up."

Mrs. Hammond doubts if they are actually any more intelligent than other cats (and cats are not nearly so dumb as they are sometimes thought to be) but she says they do show their intelligence more and as house pets develop lots of cute, original tricks. They are affectionate almost to a fault, she says, and sometimes show a tendency to "get in your hair."

Points of a Siamese cat are almost the exact opposite of those of the good long-haired cat—called by the uninitiate "Persian" or "Angora," neither of which terms are now used by fanciers. The Siamese cat is rangy and muscular; stands higher in the rear quarters than in front; has small neat paws, a wedge-shaped head, rather long and pointed ears; his bright blue eyes are Orientally slanted.

The body-color is fawn; the face, or "mask" is rich seal-brown; paws, ears and tail are also brown, and the latter must be free from rings. The "Persian" cat, on the contrary is "cobby" in body, and should be well-fleshed; his back must be level, his paws huge, as if he wore boxing-gloves; the rounder the head and face the better, ears are small and round, eyes large and round.

MIDNIGHT MASS EXPECTED TO ATTRACT AT MISSION

Hundreds of visitors are expected to attend the picturesque and traditional Midnight Mass at the old Carmel Mission on Christmas Eve. Full of historic significance, and with special music arranged by Mrs. Nell Watson, the event attracts wide attention. Father Michael D. O'Connell will deliver the special sermon, and the services will begin at 11:45 Monday night.

A series of confession hours will be held Monday at the mission, in the morning from 10 o'clock until noon; in the afternoon from 2 until 6, and in the evening from 7 until 10. Mass will also be celebrated on Christmas day at 8 o'clock and at 10.

SOROPTIMISTS DINE AT NORMANDY INN HERE

The Monterey Peninsula Soroptimist Club enjoyed its annual Christmas party at Normandy Inn Wednesday evening. A special program of Christmas carols and music was enjoyed by over 50 members of the club which were augmented by members of Soroptimist clubs of Salinas, Watsonville, and many other neighboring communities.

Ann James Is Leaving To Reside In Oakland

Passing of a familiar landmark was noted this week in the closing of the Town and Country shop on Dolores. Mrs. Ann James, who established the business eight years ago, is leaving for Oakland to join her husband, H. C. James, and her son, Ralph, who is an art student in Berkeley. She is severing her business connections in Carmel regretfully, for she has made many warm friends here. However, she is retaining her apartment in Carmel and she and her family expect to be frequent visitors.

For the last year, G. W. MacFarland has been associated with Mrs. James in the dress shop. He will remain a resident of the peninsula.

POLO BEGINS SOON

The Del Monte polo season will begin Dec. 27 with the usual Christmas tournament. Play will take place every day except New Year's Day, when there will be a horse and polo pony show. Seven teams will compete in the series.

ORCHESTRA IS PREPARING FOR JAN. CONCERT

DESPITE the fact that numerous vacancies appeared in the ranks, the Peninsula Orchestra managed a spirited volume of sound at its regular weekly rehearsal Sunday night at Denny-Watrous Gallery. It has become a pleasant custom for music lovers to attend the practice sessions. Ernst Bacon, the San Francisco director, whom the orchestra has engaged this season, has a friendly and highly informal manner with his players, and infuses them with an enthusiasm which rises to moments of brilliant performance even in scores not yet perfectly mastered.

Beethoven's fourth symphony is the "big" number which is being studied. Richly melodic and full of dynamic contrasts was the bit which the players worked on at this rehearsal, and Mr. Bacon finally got the big fortissimos and delicate pianissimos which he asked for with a cajoling "Now play it for me nice this time." In order to indicate a rhythmical fine point involving some thirty-second notes which were not getting quite the proper value, he played a little of the movement himself, on the piano; just enough to make players and auditors alike wish for more.

Most finished work was in evidence in the playing of a score by Bird, who was earlier than Bach. That Russian "Hopak," often heard as a piano solo, is taking excellent shape and has all kinds of fire. Just for diversion, Bacon had the orchestra do a little sight-reading; some Sebastian Bach, a little Gluck, and Grieg's "March of the Dwarfs," they enjoyed hugely.

Several of the players were absent because of illness, but despite this, the orchestra expects to be able to give public demonstration of results of their interesting labors sometime in January.

ARTISTS SHOW WARES

Work of William Ritchel and Armin Hansen, Carmel artists, is included in the current show at the Courvoisier Galleries in San Francisco.

Kuster Praised for Performance In Fresno Play

Edward Kuster's production of "Counsellor at Law" for the Fresno Players last week was pronounced by William Foster Elliott, in the Fresno Bee's review, to be the best the group has sponsored in 11 years of activity. Sonia Gunderson and Frank Hefling also had parts in the play in which Kuster played the title role.

Of Kuster's work the reviewer said: "By turns sentimental, tender, hard-boiled, suave, wily and despairing, he ran a long gamut of emotion without ever overacting or stepping out of character. It was quite an achievement to make you always aware of the poor Jewish boy under the skin of the successful lawyer, the sentimentalist within the cynical defender of burglars and killers . . . Kuster also is entitled to great credit for directing the piece. His casting left hardly anything to be desired, and save that the performance seemed rather too slowly paced at the start, neither did the direction which showed thoroughly professional quality throughout."

For the second Fresno production, early in February, Mr. Kuster plans to produce "Another Language." Later in the season his Golden Bough Players will take Siegfried Geyer's delightful comedy, "By Candlelight" to Fresno. The cast of eight will be selected from the best Monterey Peninsula talent, Mr. Kuster says.

As to forthcoming Carmel productions, Mr. Kuster has no announcements to make at present.

BETTER HOUSING BROADCAST

A broadcast devoted to the federal better housing program will be heard on the Pacific Coast the evening of January 8 at 7:30, according to word received by Guy Koepp, of the Associated Architects of Monterey county. The broadcast will take up the housing program from the architectural service standpoint.

ROTARY CLUB SPEAKERS

Dr. A. L. Van Houtte and Donald Staniford were guest speakers at the Soledad Rotary club recently. Subject of Dr. Van Houtte's address was "Human Radios," in which he emphasized the four kinds of personality inherent in mankind and the manner in which they could be tuned in so that there might be better relationship among people.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, The Lord, The God of hosts, is his name." These words from Amos comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, December 23, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Is the Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "Praise ye the Lord. Praise ye the Lord from the heavens; praise him in the heights . . . Let them praise the name of the Lord: for he commanded, and they were created" (Psalms 148: 1, 5).

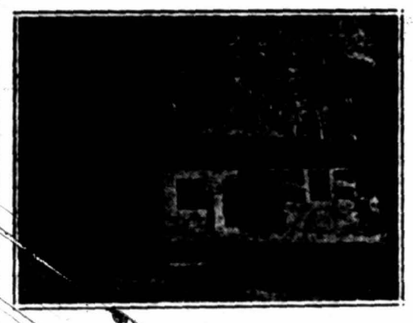

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "God creates and governs the universe, including man. The universe is filled with spiritual ideas, which He evolves, and they are obedient to the Mind that makes them" (p. 295).

THEIR LOSS CARMEL'S GAIN

Three hundred and twelve residents of Carmel have lost their votes since the general election. That means that 312 voters here will be unable to cast their ballots in the forthcoming bond election in January. Prior to the general election there were 1451 qualified electors on the roll in Carmel. Now there are only 1139. It will take a two-thirds majority to carry the proposed election for the building of a city hall. The plan already appears doomed. Are there sufficient taxpayers here who want to see the city hall planted down in Devendorf Plaza? It is doubtful.

Just how close the city hall plan came to losing out at the last city council meeting is not known to the general public. Four councilmen showed up, with one member a known adversary of the plan. The three "yes" men were not enough to carry the proposal to call election and it was necessary to send out a searching party to round up the fifth councilman to cast the necessary "yes" vote to bring about the election.

In order to vote in January it will be necessary for a voter to have been registered at least 40 days before the election. All persons who were registered and failed to exercise their franchise at the general election cannot vote on the city hall proposition.

This leave a small proportion of the voters to decide the issue.

The problem in the voters' minds is whether or not Carmel needs a city hall sufficiently to burden the taxpayers with the extra expenditure. Rentals are not high now and the present setup appears to be adequate. However, many believe that the loan offered by the government is attractive and that advantage should be taken of it to furnish the unemployed with work. It is stretching a long bow. There are other SERA projects which could be used to better advantage. Why not try some?

BUY A CHRISTMAS SEAL

The sale of Christmas seals, sponsored every year by the National Tuberculosis Association, is now going on in Carmel and should meet with a hearty response here.

More than 650,000 American citizens are said to suffer from tuberculosis at an economic cost of around $350,000,000 a year, and despite the progress being made in control work, the disease still kills more people in the prime of life than any other malady.

Early diagnosis is vitally important for the recovery of individuals and extensive educational programs along this line are being carried out. When the disease is diagnosed within six months of the first symptom the chance of recovery is much higher than when treatment is delayed and the cost of the patient's care considerably less.

Once every year, at the Christmas season, the people of almost every community in this country have an opportunity to help fight the scourge that afflicts so many persons. It is the privilege of every reader to participate in this great battle by buying Christmas seals or Health Bonds which will aid the national and local associations to carry on the campaign necessary to win the victory that is desired.

Now that the election is past history people are willing to admit that Democrats and Republicans, on the average, are pretty good people and are trying to achieve the same end, the welfare of the citizens of this really great nation.

THE SHEPHERD

O Wind, drive home your curd-white sheep,
For the gray wolf's stealing across the hill;
All day they browsed on the sunny steep,
And the gray wolf waited, invisible.

O Wind, be swift, for the snow-fleeced lambs
Are heedless and all undisciplined;
See how they stray from their tremulous dams;
Send them scurrying home, O Wind.

MARY VIRGINIA PROVINES,
In "Poetic Viewpoint."

EARTH VAUNT

The rooted one, the roving one,
These are equally
My lovers; each is satisfied
In my variety.

There is an alien—he who loves
The wild heart of the sea . . .
But at the last . . . but at the last
He, too, will come to me.

LYDIA B. LITTELL.

CHRIST-BIRTH

Night lies black on the plowlands
Earth is indrawn and still . . .
A great star breaks its silver
Over the light-rimmed hill.

Here in the land of the promise
Who will watch through the night?
For the song on the lips of darkness
The strange unearthly light . . . .

What is the heart but a manger
For cattle gaunt and thin?
Till the Spirit descends with singing
And the Christ-child wakes therein.

—D. H.

DARKNESS

You are not dust—
in the unbelievable morning
I shall wake, with the darkness still in my heart, to find you at my side,
smiling.
It is an evil dream
that you are gone.

—Charles Ballard

HEARTSEASE

When the pear and cherry blossoms
Fleck the air with snow;
When the tulips raise their canticle
Of color, row on row;
When the robin's breast is daily
Brightening its sheen,
And the woods and fields renew
Their testament of green;
When I hear a thousand voices
Trumpeting the spring,
What shall keep my heart from breaking
If I cannot sing?

LYDIA B. LITTELL.

CREDIT THE COOKS

Because solicitation by Carmel's women's organizations has not been done to death, when the ladies do come forward with requests, the whole community is interested and cooperates in a big way, as was demonstrated in the signal success of the food sale held by the P.-T. A. last Saturday. It was for a thoroughly worth-while cause; the purchase of art materials to create lasting beauty for Sunset school.

It looked rather staggegring for a while; for an organization with such an habitually slim treasury as the P.-T. A. to hope to raise $150 to spend on art. It was not only because the community wanted the art project that the benefit sale realized enough to put the fund over the top. It was also due to the efforts of that small whirl-wind, Letha Bathen, who organized her corps of workers for efficient efforts.

Because it seems that every project brings forth objections of some kind in Carmel, there was some opposition to the idea of the food sale. There was complaint that it would injure the merchants. The contrary was the case. In the first place, all the flour and sugar and meat and eggs and sundries that went into the delicious offerings, were purchased from the merchants by the housewives who contributed their time in compounding them. Some, pressed for time or distrustful of their culinary skill, purchased products outright and donated them, thus benefiting the bake-shops and tea rooms.

Moreover, the sale brought people downtown. Having patronized the food sale, they made other purchases. Late-comers, and they were numerous, with hearts set on a special delicacy for Sunday, sought other shops where good things to eat may be had, when they found the P.-T. A. sold out. So, all in all, it was a highly successful affair.

GAS TAX DIVERSION

Vigorous opposition, and rightly so, is being developed against plans of the next state legislature to divert gasoline tax money from its pledged purposes of highway construction and maintenance. With the new Roosevelt highway south of Carmel approaching completion, people in this community look forward to a greater influx of tourists. Likewise they want to see the highway maintained in a manner which will do the most good.

With indications that the gasoline tax will again be the target of raids in one guise or another at the approaching legislative session, local people are turning their attention to put a stop to any such proposals by writing or wiring their legislators.

The Carmel Pine Cone has reaffirmed its previously declared policy with respect to taxation on motorists as a class and will oppose any diversion of the gasoline tax from application to street and highway construction and maintenance.

Admittedly California still faces a grave crises in the mater of state finances. As citizens and taxpayers, motorists share in the common desire for a fair and equitable method of meeting the situation. As motorists, however, they are unwilling that motor car owners shall be singled out to bear a special added share of the common burden.

Modesty prevents us from telling you just how good the advertising columns of The Carmel Pine Cone are to those who want results but nothing prevents you from finding it out for yourself and to your profit.

Mollie Maguire Shows Paintings

Full of color and charm is Mollie Maguire's first "one-man" show in Carmel, which opened last Sunday at Denny-Watrous Gallery with a reception and tea, and will remain in place for another week. Member of an old and distinguished Irish family, Miss Maguire has been a resident of the peninsula for nearly 20 years, with a studio in Monterey. This region has inspired many of her loveliest works; two of the particularly attractive water colors are "Monterey Bay and Wharf" with the little fishing boats, clustered in bold and brilliant design against the old wharf; and an interesting view of the Monterey sky-line and bay which is as full of romance as some foreign city.

Clear, brilliant color and boldness of execution are the distinguishing feature of this artist's work. She is versatile in choice of subjects, but the stamp of her definite technique is over all. Particularly decorative are her paintings of flowers; a study of begonias is a feast of soft pure color and a painting of a mixed bouquet is graceful in design and glamorous in its wealth of hues. Skiffs drawn up on the sands form a significant pattern in the artist's interpretation; doorways are painted for their beauty of design, a farm-stead nestles in the shade of towering yet friendly hills; an old cypress is painted against the background of tawny hills beloved of Californians.

But always pre-eminent is color and for this reason the whole effect is stimulating and gay; it is a happy exhibit, as if the artist had given to it much of her own vibrant spirit and love of life.

The paintings are signed "Edith Maguire," but she has been known for so long to her friends as "Mollie" that many had forgotten this was not her true name.

New Relief Plan Solving Problems

Contrasting the present system of government aid for indigent non-residents in California with the unorganized transient relief methods of last year, a report on progress made in solving the state's transient problems during the first year of operation of the Federal Transient Service has been made public by H. A. R. Carleton, state director of the service.

Last year, according to the report, private relief shelters for transients were filled to overflowing, with men sleeping on bare floors and crowded together under unfavorable conditions. Local communities, already overburdened with relief needs of their own residents, could offer little in the way of help to non-residents, it was found.

After a year of the operation in California of the Federal Transient Service, these conditions have today been replaced by a definite program of relief for both out-of-state and intra-state transients, Carleton's report showing a total of 129 government relief units now in existence, including work camps, shelters, intake bureaus, family aid bureaus, treatment centers, and city work project shops.

Tens of thousands of jobless non-resident men and boys have been taken off the streets of California cities and placed in work camps in the mountains and forest regions, where decent food, clothing, and lodging, and regular hours of work, education, and recreation, have started them along the road to rehabilitation, the report stated.

BOOTLEGGING CONTINUES

Revenues from legal liquor sales have been considerably short of expectations during the first repeal year and bootlegging and illicit distilling have not been eradicated.

John Jordan Spreads Fame of Carmel and Gives Palm Springs Some Tips

CARMEL'S fame was carried far into the southern portion of the state, and her well-known temperamental difficulties in civic affairs added a light touch to a serious meeting when John Jordan of Pine Inn, former mayor of the village, was summoned to Palm Springs to address a mass meeting called to consider incorporation of the desert resort. Mr. Jordan was obliged to break the sad news to the Palm Springs folk that so far as he could see, they couldn't incorporate if they wanted to, due to the fact that the community is built in, around and over a pre-existing Indian reservation, and so has not contiguous territory. Every other section, it seems, is held by our brother, the red man.

Emphatically No

"Has Carmel a Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Jordan?" asked an auditor.

"NO! said Mr. Jordan.

"Tee hee!" tittered the meeting at large, according to the Palm Springs Limelight.

Of the veteran Carmel "city father" the Limelight said:

"Spectacled, grey and curly-haired, Mr. Jordan proved a pleasing and sometimes witty speaker of wide experience in matters municipal. He opened his talk with a lengthy analysis of civic incidents in Carmel, its success in keeping the early days atmosphere and its general charm; a preamble which might have been less lengthy and still have been adequate to the occasion." (Ed. note:—This is what is known journalistically as a dirty dig. Jealousy of a rival resort?)

Good for Carmel

"Carmel has much in common with Palm Springs. It is unique. It was started originally by artists and had the foresight to incorporate in authors who like the scenery but who its infancy. In the opinion of Mr. Jordan, incorporation with strict zoning laws, high license fees for fly-by-night business enterprises, and a city council so active and effective that not a tree can be cut down without its consent, has been responsible for preserving the distinctive atmosphere which first gave the village its charm."

Population of Palm Springs is about half that of Carmel, according to the Limelight, but their circumstances are in many ways similar. (Including the fact that each village can boast one of the two most distinctive weekly newspapers published on the Pacific or any other coast. Adv.)

Miss Marthe A. Newcomb of Pebble Beach is staying at the Clift while in San Francisco for a few days.

FASHION IDEA BORN IN CARMEL IS NOW SWEEPING OVER UNITED STATES

IN her Carmel studio-apartment, Len Shaw launched a fashion idea which is sweeping over the country. Coming here last summer with a good idea and a lot of gaudy native fabrics from Guatemala, Miss Shaw has had several busy months making the idea bear fruit, and has been rewarded by seeing something other designers pronounced "impossible" start a new style trend.

It all began when a friend of hers came back from Guatemala with an armful of the gay native weavings which people were buying for piano scarves, table runners, wall hangings and that sort of thing. To her trained designer's eye, the fabrics said clothes!" and everyone said she was crazy.

Cloth Sheds Water

But the native Indian women wear them, and why not Californians, who gave the United States a new conception of the use of color? The fabrics are heavy cotton, or cotton-and-wool, so closely woven that they shed water and are practically wrinkle-proof. Indestructible native dyes are used; the colors are striking and primitive. More or less traditional designs are woven in contrasting colors.

The Indian women wear a sarong-like skirt, a blouse that hangs like a poncho and is spelled huipile, and pronounced "weepeel." A bright sash is bound around the waist, and the last touch of color is added in the strips woven into the braids of long hair which are then piled up to form a cushion for the burdens they carry on their heads.

Miss Shaw makes up the "huipiles" with a trifle more dash than the native seamstresses achieve. The material in the raw stage is two long pieces whipped together down the center. She uses them the "long" way of the goods, leaves a hole for the head—and a smart, straight high neck-line—and gathers them at the wrists. The whole trick is in the two short seams at the waist, which fit them to the individual figure. The whole effect is exotic and very smart. They are being used for evening or hostess gowns, with velvet skirts.

From the skirting used by the Guatemalan women, an English sportsman had the inspiration a good many years ago, of having hunting shirts made. He taught the native women to tailor them in smart London fashion to which he was accustomed, and the Indian men liked the idea so well that tailored shirts of native materials have become practically a national costume. They also look very Carmelish.

For Equestriennes

Another good idea is the little form-fitting vests for riding, with jockey caps to match. The advantage to the equestrienne is no more broken brassiere straps, because with them no brassiere is needed!

Miss Shaw arrived at costume design by the circuitous route of portrait painting. She is a member of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts Fellowship, having attended this institution for four years, with advanced work at the Academie Julien and Grande Chaumiere in Paris. In the world of design she has been active in New York and Hollywood, and her fortfolio of sketches is a delight to the fashion-minded. In private life she is Mrs. Whitmore Waldegrave, bride of a rew months. Her studio apartment is in La Geralda building, at Dolores and Seventh.

Mrs. E. L. Hamilton has gone to San Francisco for a short stay.

Mrs. G. F. Beardsley and Mrs. Mabel Turner motored north this week for holiday visits with relatives in Berkeley and San Francisco.

French Playlets Add Interest To Dinner

A Saturday evening dinner party at the home of Mrs. Grace Rodgers followed by a program of French playlets closed the autumn term of Mme. Jeanne Pirenne's French class. In "Oh, Monsieur," Rudolph Bremer showed himself a sympathetic lover as "Vicomte de Monsablon; Marie Gordon appeared as "Berthe" and Mollie Gibbons as a perfect mother.

"Tuons le Coque" aroused laughter with Marjorie Pegram acting with grace and simplicity the part of a country lady. Flora Gibbons played a masculine role with great success, Althee McGarraugh was a most natural country cook and Rudolph Bremer as a vegetable man and a postman added to the hilarity.

The party closed with the singing of old French songs and Christmas carols.

Miss Hilda Van Sicklen, who has been a Peninsula resident for the past six months, established at Forest Hill Hotel in Pacific Grove, returned to San Francisco this week.

P.-T. A. FOOD SALE PROVES HUGE SUCCESS

CLEARING $240 by means of the food sale held Saturday at Carmel Garage, Sunset P.-T. A. succeeded beyond its most ambitious hopes in raising sufficient funds to underwrite the SERA art project for Sunset school. Only $140 will be required for purchase of materials for the easel canvasses and flower panels, the execution of which will be assured by SERA funds. The remaining $100 will be retained in the P.-T. A. treasury until needed.

Carmel's best cooks contributed to the tempting and extensive display of delicious dishes which were brought up like the proverbial hot cakes, so that shortly after 4 o'clock not a scrap of anything was left.

Wins Turkey

Louis Trenner, popular Monterey "traffic cop" was winner of the huge roasted turkey which was given away in connection with the affair.

President Grateful

In deep appreciation of the whole-hearted community cooperation which the project brought forth, Mrs. E. A. H. Watson, president of the P.-T. A. writes:

"To everyone who contributed in any way to the success of the Carmel Parent-Teachers' food sale on Saturday, I would like to say thank you very, very much. Not only were the contributions of food and money greatly appreciated, but we were all particularly pleased with the festive spirit that overhung the whole affair due to the whole-hearted cooperation of the entire town.

"You will be glad to know that we cleared $240. Of this $140 will be used for the art project and the remaining $100 will be retained in the P.-T. A. treasury until it is needed."

SENTIMENTAL VISIT

About eight years ago Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Gilbert of Yakima, Washington, were in Carmel for their honeymoon. They returned last week on a "sentimental journey," and with them were Mr. Gilbert's brother, H. N. Gilbert and his bride, married last week in Pasadena, who are now repeating the family tradition of a Carmel honeymoon.

CLUB JUBILEE SUCCESS

Another Manzanita Club jubilee has been added to the long list of events coming during the holidays, this time assisted by the local Legion post. Entertainment was arranged by Capt. Pat Hudgins, assisted by Lieut. J. Gilcreest, of the regional CCC projects.

Miss Abercrombie has returned from the hospital to her home on the Point and is convalescing from her recent illness.

Carmel Folk Attend Salinas Scout Party

Heralded as an event of outstanding success and achievement, troop leaders and assistants of Boy Scout troops, sea scout ships, and cub packs of the Monterey Bay Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, gathered recently at Salinas for their second annual Scoutmasters' Christmas party. A banquet, entertainment, and Christmas present were given to all troop leaders by pooling a voluntary sum of money from each of the organizations sponsoring a scout unit.

Salinas scoutmasters acted as hosts Don Hodgson and John Grau serving on the arrangements committee, and Stanley Lawson and Jack Flynn on the entertainment committee, with Charles Ayers, of the Santa Lucia Inn, caterer. Moving pictures were provided by Jack Anderson, of Salinas, while Mesdames Irene Breschini, Stanley Lawson and William Schweitzer offered musical entertainment.

M. C. Dorsett of Carmel was among the honorary guests and several Carmel citizens contributed to the fund making the party possible.

New Architecture To Be Exposition Feature

Flowers and plants play a major part in a new style of architecture to be featured at the California Pacific International Exposition in San Diego, opened May 29.

Fresh and poignantly western, the design takes inspiration from the Indian pueblos of the Southwest and color from the flowering gardens of Southern California. Indian builders relied upon the effect of simple mass; ornamentation was lacking. Exposition architects have carried forward the primitive effect and accomplished decoration through the novel use of living plants and flowers. The decorative treatment of each building embodies the use of concealed cornice and roof troughs from which living plants will be trained to accomplish the effect of color and decoration.

Plays for Children Sought by Theater

An entrance fee of $1 must accompany every manuscript. The Palo Alto Community Children's Theater reserves the right to produce, royalty free, any of the plays submitted, the title to all plays remaining with the author.

A recent arrival is Irwin Barbour, who has bought a home near Vista and Dolores and is established there with Mrs. Barbour and their children. He is Pacific Coast representative for the McClure syndicate of newspaper features.

Peace on Earth Theme of School Paper Article

"Peace on earth, good will to men," writes Gerading Lamb, eighth grader, in the Christmas Number of Sunset Glow, school publication just off the press, "for it would be wonderful if wars that bring destruction and havoc were not to occur. Perhaps the poor of today would not have to go without food and clothing for there would be enough to provide for them . . . Boys and girls today can help to bring about 'peace on earth' by showing good will in their everyday activities. Then when they grow older they will be better able to help in preventing wars from happening."

This is one of the numerous good essays and poems saluting the Christmas season in Sunset Glow. Every page of the publication is illustrated with drawings, and the cover has a Madonna and Child.

JUNIOR FIRE DEPARTMENT ORGANIZED BY BOYS HERE

Carmel has a junior fire department. "Tooper" Leidig, nephew of Chief Bob Leidig of the local volunteer forces, is chief of the juniors, and Assistant Chief Warrington is his right hand man. The fire house is an excavation in the bank back of Leidig's grocery on Dolores, within easy reach of the real apparatus on Sixth, and what the quarters lack in finish the heavily equipped rolling stock makes up for in completeness.

More Requests to Keep Santa Claus Busy Climbing Down Carmel Chimneys

DEAR Santa Claus:

More Carmel people have come forward with their requests for presents. So please, when you bring your bag of gifts to this village, don't overlook the following:

Arthur Cyril, one of the town's stage veterans, visited long enough on a recent return to say, "Please tell Santa to give me back the old Carmel."

Katharine Whitney, upon hearing Willard say this, remarked, "Well, you can ask Conrad what Santa is to bring me."

William L. Overstreet, publisher and writer, and ex-postmaster, remarked, "Tell him that I'll be satisfied with a continuation of my present wonderfully good health."

Neil Twilegar, of El Fumidor Cigar Stand, turned his thoughts unselfishly to his friends when he answered, "Bring me a couple striped bass to put in the Christmas stockings of 'Dad' Haller and Paul Whitman."

Walter Tuthill, proprietor of the Carmel Smoke Shop, and veteran of many an Abalone League series, "I want 1000 aces in a pinochle game, with somebody else's score 99."

George E. Blair, of Weeds and Reads store, without hesitation replied, "I could use a check book with lots of pages in it."

Jesse James Martin, also of Weeds and Reads, was a bit more diverse when he said, "Just tell Santa to bring me a pair of sox, a necktie, a shirt and a brand new gasoline station."

William Staniford, of the American Mineral Water Company, and well known amateur athlete, asked that his wish be announced as "Santa sending his wife down the chimney instead of himself."

Ora Minges, of Minges Grocery, replied, "Just say that I want to keep on being as active as I am now."

William Crabbe, peninsula head of the P. G. & E., hopes "That Santa will bring us glee club singers voices before breakfast so that we can sing at the Breakfast Club."

Lewis Josselyn, photographer and long-time resident of Carmel, wishes "That I could be in three places at once on these bright winter days to take pictures in this matchless region."

P. A. McCreery, of Thoburn's real estate brokerage, said, "I would like all the summer people to come just once in the winter so that they could see how really fine Carmel days can be."

Joe Oliveiro, of Joe's Taxi, would like "Three hundred gallons of gasoline."

Dave Davis, of the Rohr Electrical Shop, said, "Give me no national unemployment and I'll take care of the rest."

Plan Precinct Change For Utilities District

The Monterey board of supervisors will meet on Jan. 7 to fix boundaries of the proposed peninsula public utility district in accordance with recommendations agreed upon by the mayors' committee. Division of Point Lobos precinct will be one of the important changes.

If approved, the division will create a new precinct to include Carmel Point and contiguous territory bounded by Carmel river, the state highway, Third Avenue, Carmel city limits and the ocean.

County Clerk Carol F. Joy gave his sanction to the proposal at a conference with City Attorney Argyll Campbell, who explained the purpose of the plan.

If the supervisors approve the precinct division, they will then be asked to call a special election in the district, at which the proposal to form a public utility district will be passed upon by the voters.

Audrey Walton Camp Director

Miss Audrey Walton, social case worker for Carmel Red Cross for the past two years, has accepted a position as director of the SERA camp for women located in the former Del Monte military academy near Pacific Grove. Miss Walton received the appointment from Mrs. Leslie Ganyard, director of women's work for SERA. She will continue to make her home in Carmel.

The only camp of its kind in the United States, the Pacific Grove institution represents an experiment in rehabilitation of women of the cities who have found the sledding a bit too hard. Women from the ages of 30 to 50, physically capable of working four hours a day, are admitted for a stay of three months, after which they are returned to their home cities and helped to find employment. In return for the work which they are asked to perform, they receive board, room, and $5 a month. All work of converting the camp from empty barracks into an attractive home has been performed by the women themselves, at minimum cost.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Nye motored to Berkeley Tuesday, to remain over Christmas.
